FAMILY OWNED SINCE 1877

The Ambriola Company, located in West Caldwell, NJ, is a family-owned cheese importer. Established in 1921, the Ambriola Company prides itself in product excellence and quality. In the 1990's Ambriola expanded its offering to include Reggiano Parmigiano, Grana Padano, and the famous Auricchio Provolone. The Ambriola Company was purchased by Auricchio SpA of Cremona, Italy in 2014, which had been family owned since 1877. Auricchio and Ambriola both boast a long and rich history: Ambriola celebrated its 100th year in 2021 and Auricchio will turn 150 in 2027! Auricchio lives by the saying "Fatto a Mano da Sempre," which translates to "Made by Hand Always."

Ambriola owns an SQF Level 2 conversion facility where they convert large wheels of cheese into grated, shredded, and precut portions to order. Our Ambriola product offerings have blossomed to include three age selections of Auricchio provolone (dolce, classico and stravecchio), gorgonzola, taleggio, and other DOP and Specialty Italian cheese, including two Foodservice Box assortments and two new Grated DOP cheeses.

Auricchio and Ambriola ready-to-go boxes of various sizes and cuts of cheese are perfect for events and catering.

The Auricchio Italian Assortment of cheeses is a selection of six specialty Italian cheeses, approximately 1.5 pounds each. Provolone, Moliterno, Taleggio, Pecorino Tarrufo, Saracino Red Pepper, and Parmesan Reggiano make this a perfect catering or cheese board assortment.

WILD GAME SAUSAGE

As summer sun gives way to crisp autumn air, the bounty of the hunt arrives. With it comes a delicious and unique culinary opportunity: game sausages! The smoky aroma of wild boar and cranberry sausage sizzling on the grill, the juicy burst of venison in natural casing, delicately seasoned with merlot and blueberries...game sausages transform fall feasts, offering a taste of the wild that's both exciting and delicious. Chateau Royal has been defining the art of gourmet sausage making since 1988. Their extensive line of gourmet sausages provide outstanding taste and quality that surpasses any competition.

Chateau Royal expertly blended sausages are a smart addition to fall menus, and an economical way to incorporate game meats into your seasonal offerings. The options are plentiful: offer a rabbit and white wine sausage on a Pretzilla Sausage Bun with sauerkraut and grainy Pop Mustard, incorporate as an addition to a mixed grill entrée, toss with pasta, or pair with a braised rabbit leg. GEORGIA HAS PEACHES, NEW MEXICO HAS HATCH CHILE

Georgia has its peaches, Idaho has its potatoes, and New Mexico has Zia Hatch Chile, a crop that is harvested only once per year in the region around Hatch, New Mexico. Zia Hatch Chile Company supplies authentic Hatch Chile year round and to retailers, chefs, home cooks and transplants all over the nation.

From Founder Nate Cotanch:

"I originally started the company at a farmers market in Brooklyn, NY and the company has since grown nationwide. My story is the same as so many others around the nation who moved away to areas where Hatch Chile doesn't exist. When that happens, it's not just a piece of your diet that you lose, but it makes you feel like you've lost a piece of home / soul."

Today, their roasted Hatch Chile is available at a number of great retailers and used by leading chefs all around the nation. Every jar can be tracked back to the growers' family-owned fields around Hatch, NM and all of their products are manufactured locally in Las Cruces. Zia Hatch Chile is Whole30 Approved, completely natural and there are no added ingredients to change the authentic hatch chile flavor.

Distinctive Selling Points:

- Sourced from family owned farms around Hatch, New Mexico.
- The labor intensive process of roasting, peeling, and dicing is already done.
- Each 128oz gallon is the equivalent of 80+ individual roasted, peeled, and diced pods.
- Shelf stable, so no need to take up freezer space or spend time thawing.
- A flavorful ingredient that complements rather than providing an overpowering heat level.
- Completely plant-based, Whole30 Approved, gluten free, non-GMO, and New Mexico Department of Agriculture Certified.

BACK TO SCHOOL, BACK TO REALITY

August is typically a month full of transitions. With summer vacation wrapping up, back-to-school time is around the corner. Busy schedules provide an opportunity to promote specialty grab-and-go options to both retail and foodservice customers. A 2023 study out of Washington State University found that unplanned purchases accounted for over half of all supermarket purchases. Offering snacks at the counter or to-go options at the end of a meal is a quick way to increase purchases and check average.

SAN CARLO CHIPS

San Carlo is Italy's #1 chip for a reason. The company was founded in a rotisserie shop in 1936. From the start, San Carlo has made it a focus to spread their motto, "La Vita è Buona" or "Life is good." Their authentic Italian flavors and crunchy texture make them the perfect afternoon snack to add a little Italian flare to your day. Classic, Pesto, and Tomato all come in both retail and foodservice grab-and-go sizes for all operators and offerings. Let San Carlo show you the good life.

INDUSTRY TRENDS

Retail & Foodservice

APPROACHABILITY, FAMILIARITY WITH A TWIST STAND OUT AT FANCY FOOD SHOW

Approachable specialties that may act as a gateway to other innovative fare is among the trends spotted on the Summer Fancy Food Show floor by Melanie Bartelme, associate director of Mintel Food & Drink and member of SFA's Trendspotter Panel of experts who scour the Fancy Food Shows seeking trends.

"In the Bulgarian Pavilion there was a hot sauce designed for kids that was pretty mild and there were other palate openers for different products. Even in cheeses there was a milder blue cheese and a mild gouda. These might be for people who don't really know what to expect or who may be intimidated by blue cheese," said Bartelme during SFA's Trendspotter Panel discussion, Tuesday, which also included Trendspotter Kat Craddock, who is editor-in-chief and CEO at Saveur.

When discussing the heat of certain products, Craddock remarked that specialty makers are more focused on the flavor that ingredients deliver.

"With some of the oil-based chili condiments like salsa macha it's more about the flavor of the peppers than the amount of heat," Craddock said.

When asked about the prevalence of GLP-1 drugs such as Ozempic and whether the small portions of nutrient-dense foods sought by its users could change the way we approach snacking and meals...Bartelme said that even non-users of these drugs, and Americans in general, are seeking these types of foods.

"A lot of people have adopted snacking and it's not necessarily just for people on these drugs...No matter how you're approaching dieting or choosing to eat and take care of your body, more companies are offering what you really need in different ways. Nestle came out with essentially a Lean Cuisine that was intended for people who are on [diabetes drugs] to make sure they are getting the nutrients they need from the smaller portions that they are consuming."

Craddock noted that snacking has grown post-pandemic as a result of greater workplace flexibility.

"More people are eating at home and working from home," she said. "We don't have to live out our food consumption in a lunch hour. It opens up a whole new way to sustain yourself."

Versatile products also stood out at the Show.

"There is a lot of pressure on consumers to make sure that the products that they're buying are really doing as much for them as they can and I think there is a spectrum of people who can participate in specialty products," said Bartelme, who noted that versatility is often key to justifying an expense. "There is an emergence of products that are really focusing on 'I'm not a healthier this, I'm not a special ingredient that.' It's more of 'I'm a cake mix and I'm just a really good cake mix and you can start with that and do other things with it.'"

"It's about starting with a really great product and helping the consumer understand what to do with it or say 'hey, you can just have this as is or you can really kind of chose your own adventure with it,'" she said.

Fruit forward products and fruits as snacks, continue to trend.

"My very first bite when I got here to the show was of durian," said Craddock. "It's a very polarizing flavor. Some people think it tastes like vanilla and custard, other people think it tastes like onions, but I was really excited to see that in the new products area."

Bartelme, who is a produce analyst, was also pleased with the showing of fruit.

"There are companies like Oishii with their vertically farmed strawberries and I have a friend here in the audience who makes a yellow tomato Bloody Mary mix which caught my eye because it's a different color so it's something very familiar. You already know what a Bloody Mary is and you know what a tomato is and let me see what it tastes like. So familiarity brings you into wanting to experience something and then you get to unpack the unique things about it," Bartelme said.
